Mr. Gookin's Foreword.

Frederick W. Gookin, the well known spert and connoisseur, has written for he catalogue a "foreword" which we the catalogue a locked take great ple sure in reproducing;
"The dispersal of Mr. Metzgar's collection of Japanese color prints affords another rare opportunity to acquire choice impressions of important works by some of the great masters of the

The supply of prints that for nearly The supply of prints that for nearly a quarter of a century came from Japan in a seemingly never ending stream has been rapidly dwindling for several years past, and now has virtually ceased to be a factor in the market. And, although many thousands of prints were sent to America and Europe while the tide was at its flood, nearly all the finer ones have gradually found lodgment in a comparatively few collections. The owners of these collections were the first to perceive that while the number of prints is existence is very large, of the master in existence is very large, of the master works only a few of the most beautiful impressions have survived in fine condi-tion. These are the treasures that yield the art lover abiding joy.

'That all of Mr. Metagar's prints are of this class he would be the first one to disclaim; but in gathering them he has constantly kept in view the desirability of constantly kept in view the desirability of securing the best impressions he could find. His special endeavor has been to acquire choice prints by Hiroshige, and in particular to perfect his set of the so-called first! Tokaido series. How difficult it is to make up such a set as the one included in this sale will be better understood when it is learned that for the bride property of the bride, and the bridesmaids were Miss Esther Cary and Miss Gretta Richerwing of Trento. The best man was Hoffman Potter, a brother of the bridesroom. Dr. and Mrs. Potter will live at White Plains, where Dr. Potter understood when it is learned that for ears Mr. Metzgar has been indefatigable in his search, not only watching carefully the stocks of dealers, but the sales by auction in Japan and Europe as well America, and frequently buying sets in order to get from each only r two prints out of the fifty-four.

"Handred Edo Views." The same method and the same care

been exercised in getting together he prints of the 'Hundred Edo' and other series, which he has decided to give other collectors the portunity to acquire. Of especial im-tance are sev ral proof impressions of his of the upright Tokaido and Yedo surimono paper, mostly in tones of blue. Noteworthy also are the charming Kwacho (flower and bird) prints an exceptionally fine lot, including several of very distinguished design, and what are perhaps the supreme impres-gors of one or two of the items. Taking them all together, not since the Happer sale has a finer lot of Hiroshige prints

Besides the Hiroshiges the collection includes many desirable prints by other masters which it would take too much space to specify in this foreword. Attention should, however, be directed to the unusual group of pillar prints in remarkable condition. These prints were giverally mounted as Kakemono and suffered from long exposure to light and smoke and the ravages of insects, so that they are rarely found in satisfactory state. Mr. Metzgar has been fortutory state. Mr. Metzgar has been fortun getting hold of so many choice
